

National Professional Qualification for Senior Leadership (NPQSL)

Are you a current or aspiring Senior Leader? Do you want to learn from leaders that have led schools through recent and rapid school improvement journeys?

The NPQSL is aimed at current and aspiring senior leaders in primary, secondary and special school settings. This includes experienced middle leaders, assistant heads, deputy heads and other senior staff looking for professional development.

Teach Manchester is unique in offering you:

- Excellent training designed and delivered from a team of established Manchester leaders from primary and secondary schools;
- A programme of study, which includes a one night residential stay, with opportunities embedded throughout the course to network with other local leaders;
- An opportunity to develop and lead a transformational in-school initiative, with dedicated 1:1 coaching support from your in-school 'SLT Impact Coach';
- Training events and workshops taking place in various Manchester schools with the chance for participants to learn about effective practice;
- The opportunity to visit another school to shadow and learn from a member of the Senior Leadership Team.

We also offer the National Professional Qualification for Middle Leadership. Contact us for further details.

Who are the course leaders?

This course will be delivered by inspirational leaders in Manchester schools with proven track records in school improvement, including:

Ann Flatman, Deputy Headteacher, Trinity CofE High School

Ann has been instrumental in maximising the impact of the outstanding status of her current school through outward facing growth, including the Teaching School designation and Sixth Form provision.

Sarah Gregory, Deputy Headteacher, Levenshulme High School

Sarah has 24 years experience of leading transformational change in a broad range of secondary schools, including most recently a three-year journey from special measures to outstanding.

Emma McLaren, Vice Principal, Manchester Enterprise Academy

Under Emma's leadership, staff CPD and professional learning has achieved Bronze and Silver Award Status from the Teacher Development Trust.

Lucy Thomas, Head teacher, Ashbury Meadow Primary School

Lucy has successfully lead an inner city Manchester primary school to outstanding. She has a longstanding commitment to professional development and is a recognised Advanced Coach for organisations such as the NCTL on their Women in Leadership Programme.
