How can I adapt to a home-working environment?	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) Get dressed to get yourself in the mind-frame for working. 2) If you can, set up a home-office space in a part of the lounge/spare room. 3) Stick to a daily routine and establish boundaries – what does your supervisor expect to be finished by the end of the day/have you set a goal? 4) Keep active - go for a walk/run at lunch time if possible, stretch often. 5) Take regular breaks. 6) Communicate – phone-call meetings where you can. 	BBC – Five Ways to Work Well from Home Mind – Coronavirus and your wellbeing – tips and strategies
I am working from home (WFH) and looking after my children, how can I build a routine around this?	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1) Create a daily and weekly, structured timetable with your children (if you can), allow them to take part in making decisions about when they learn, play and take breaks. This is likely to look quite different from their school timetable. 2) If you have a partner also WFH, schedule in when you are each going to be responsible for the children. 3) Have a clear understanding of your work's expectations and deadlines, anticipate that tasks may take longer to complete with the addition of child-care in your daily work schedule – communicate with your manager regularly to discuss this. 4) Read through guidance/resources provided by your school so you understand what your child is expected to complete. 5) Use the links below to find further educational resources to enhance your child's learning. 6) Embrace the challenges the school tasks provide and offer your child practical tips to help problem-solve but not the answer itself. 7) Take regular breaks; you could take the opportunity to do a short/long physical activity using the links below. 8) Make an agreement about screen-time limit on phone/tablet settings. Come up with a list of activities that don't involve a TV/tablet/phone screen. 9) Encourage ideas for positive social action especially at this time i.e. crafts/pictures/letter writing to elderly/vulnerable in your local area. 	Facebook groups and Twitter have regular updates, suggestions and advice @TeacherToolkit – resources and advice on home schooling your children
